Atlanta Graduate School Signs Affiliation MOU with Mainseed Christian University

Atlanta, Georgia – March 19, 2025 – Atlanta Graduate School (AGS) and Mainseed Christian University (MCU) have officially signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) solidifying their academic affiliation. The signing ceremony, held in Atlanta, Georgia, marks a significant step in expanding educational opportunities and academic collaboration between both institutions.

Representing Atlanta Graduate School, Chancellor and Chief Executive Officer, Raymond Onyegu, Ph.D., and Mainseed Christian University's President, Professor John Ughulu, formalized the partnership in a brief but momentous ceremony.

This affiliation establishes a strategic partnership aimed at enhancing academic programs, faculty collaboration, and student development initiatives. Through this alliance, AGS will leverage MCU's recognized accreditation, expanding its postgraduate and executive education offerings while strengthening its global academic reach.

Speaking at the ceremony, Dr. Raymond Onyegu emphasized the importance of the partnership in fostering innovation and leadership in higher education. "This collaboration with Mainseed Christian University aligns perfectly with our vision of providing world-class graduate and executive education while ensuring our students receive recognized and accredited qualifications that empower them for global impact."

Professor John Ughulu highlighted the value of the affiliation in broadening academic access and institutional development. "Mainseed Christian University is excited to welcome Atlanta Graduate School into our academic network. This partnership reinforces our commitment to educational excellence and student success, and we look forward to mutual growth and innovation."

The affiliation will enable students at AGS to benefit from expanded academic resources, joint research opportunities, and access to internationally recognized degree programs. Faculty and scholars from both institutions will also collaborate on professional development programs, research initiatives, and thought leadership in key areas of postgraduate and executive education.

This MOU signifies the beginning of a dynamic partnership committed to academic excellence, professional development, and global educational leadership.
